Safe in the City* to be Included in 2008 Compendium

Jeffrey Klausner, MD, Director of STD Prevention & Control, was chosen for inclusion in the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's (CDC) 2008 Compendium of Evidenced-based HIV Prevention Interventions. The intervention, Safe in the City, www.safeinthecity.org, is one of eight new interventions added in 2008. To be included, programs must be scientifically proven to reduce HIV or STD-related risk behaviors, or promote safer behaviors. Pedestrian Injury Forecasting Tool Published Online November 2008

DPH's research modeling environmental impacts on vehicle-pedestrian injury collisions has been published online by the peer-reviewed journal Accident Analysis & Prevention. The research and the publication are products of the Bureau of Environmental Health's Urban Health and Place Team. The model suggests that environmental conditions, including traffic volume, street type, land use, and population characteristics, explain approximately 72 percent of the variation in vehicle-pedestrian injury collisions among San Francisco census tracts. DPH applied the pedestrian injury forecasting model to evaluate industrial and residential rezoning proposals with the aim of effecting improvements in the pedestrian environment.

Study Identifies Lead Poisoning Source

Ihsan DuJaili, Environmental Health Technician, is one of the authors on a Case Study recently published in Nature Reviews Nephrology by Suma Prakash et. al. (vol. 5, 297-300, May 2009). Ihsan assisted Vivek Bhalla, MD, from the Stanford University School of Medicine's Nephrology Division, in identifying a lead poisoning source for a patient who was being treated for Stage 3 chronic kidney disease. The paper's finding is that the patient's disease was probably worsened by consumption of lead in the form of an Ayurvedic herbal remedy, which Mr. DuJaili identified as a potential source and had analyzed by a laboratory.
