The new coronavirus (COVID-19) is a global outbreak that has affected people in many countries, including the United States. In February, Mayor London Breed declared a local emergency to boost preparedness in San Francisco, if the virus comes to our community. The Department of Public Health is leading the city’s efforts, and everyone can follow these tips to protect community health.

Protect

- WASH YOUR HANDS
- COVER YOUR COUGH
- STAY HOME IF SICK
- GET A FLU SHOT

Prepare

- Think about how you and your family can get ready, in case of illness
- Make a backup childcare plan in case you or a caregiver become ill
- Make sure you have a supply of all essential medications for your family
- There is no current recommendation to wear masks to prevent disease

Know the facts

- Risk for COVID-19 is based on travel, contacts and exposure to the virus. No racial, ethnic or cultural group is more at risk.
- No cases of COVID-19 have been identified in San Francisco residents. We are preparing in case that changes.
- The most common symptoms of COVID-19 are fever, cough and shortness of breath. If you have traveled to a country/region with cases of the new virus, and you develop symptoms, call your doctor and tell them about your symptoms and your recent travel.
- If you have questions, find more information at sf72.org or call 311.