Program Description:

With support from the administrative assistants and the Medical Consultant, Public Health Nurses provide health care coordination services for children and their families involved with the child welfare system as well as consultation and education for the Protective Service Workers (PSWs), Substitute Care Providers and other members of the Family and Children's Services (FCS) Division of the Human Services Agency (HAS). Other services include: home visitation to FCS clients; education and training for Resource Families; developmental screening. One PHN is located at the Juvenile Justice Center (375 Woodside Avenue, San Francisco) to provide health care coordination services for child welfare clients in the probation system.
