Rachel Ohtake, MCAH Epidemiologist Trainee, 2021-

Rachel joins the SFPDPH following a variety of professional experiences, most recently doing field operations with the U.S. Census Bureau and workforce planning with the SFPUC. Rachel's passion for gender equity issues relating to work and family led her to earn a M.A. in Demography from U.C. Berkeley, where she trained in formal population analysis with connections to economics, sociology, and public health. She also has a B.S. in Ecology and Evolutionary Biology from the University of Arizona. As a MCAH Epidemiologist Trainee, her initial work is focusing on exploring various demographic data sources to gain updated insights into San Francisco's maternal and child population. She is excited to train and work in a variety of epidemiology duties that can empower stakeholders to improve maternal, child, and adolescent health through data-informed decisions.
