you should be SAfeduring your pregnancy

Are you safe in your relationship?

- Does your partner ever make you feel afraid?
- Has your partner ever hit you, hurt you or threatened you?
- Has your partner ever forced you to have sex when you didn't want to?

If you answer "yes" to any of these questions then you are experiencing violence — and your healthcare provider can help.

Protect yourself and your baby... being hurt or afraid is not your fault.

During pregnancy, abuse is more common than any other health problem. To have a healthy baby, you should be free of violence and fear.

If you are being hurt or threatened by your partner while you are pregnant, you have a higher chance of:

- Injury to your uterus
- Miscarriage, stillbirth, or premature baby
- Getting a dangerous vaginal infection from forced or unprotected sex with someone who has an infection
- Increased 1st and 2nd trimester bleeding

Violence increases your baby's risk of:

- Weighing too little at birth
- Having trouble nursing or taking a bottle
- Having more sleeping problems
- Being harder to comfort than other babies
- Having problems learning to walk, talk, and learn well
- Experiencing lasting emotional trauma
- Being physically and sexually abused
- Being hurt during a fight

Talk with your health care provider or childbirth educator.

- We care about you. You and your baby deserve to be safe.
- We can help you take action develop a safety plan, make an emergency kit and learn about local community resources.
