Dear San Francisco Employers*:

Thank you for all that you are doing in these unprecedented times to ensure your employees are well and not at risk of spreading COVID-19 to others at the workplace. We truly appreciate all your efforts to modify your businesses and everyday lives to reduce the risk of spreading COVID-19 and to save lives.

To support workplace safety and economic recovery we want to remind you that according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), employees who had COVID-19 are considered no longer contagious and may therefore return to work if:

- it has been 10 days since their symptoms started AND
- their symptoms have improved AND
- it has been at least 24 hours since they have had a fever without the use of fever-reducing medication

If the employee never had symptoms and tested positive for the COVID-19 virus, they are considered no longer contagious and can return to work 10 days after their positive test.

Per CalOSHA, employers should not request a medical note for clearance to return to work or a negative COVID-19 test result from employees who were diagnosed with COVID-19 before allowing employees to return to work. Requesting employees provide a medical note or proof of negative COVID-19 virus tests after they have been diagnosed creates a backlog on the healthcare system, is unnecessary, delays return to work, and causes strain on testing availability for others who need to be tested. Employees are considered no longer contagious and may return to work when they meet the criteria described above.

Your employee who had COVID-19 may print this letter out to serve the purpose of:
1) showing proof that they can return to work if they meet the criteria above (detailed further at www.sfdph.org/ianq) and/or
2) showing proof that employers should not request proof of a negative COVID-19 virus tests to be allowed to return to work. This letter can be found online at www.sfcdcp.org/workletter
