First-Point-of-Contact:

Best Practices Guide for Law Enforcement

LEAD SF is an innovative pre-booking diversion program that will refer repeat, low-level drug offenders, at the earliest contact with law enforcement to community-based health and social services as an alternative to jail and prosecution. Thoughtful and effective engagement at the first point of contact is integral to the success of referrals and the program as a whole. Key stakeholders at the Law Enforcement Stakeholder Workgroup identified the need for a script for officers to ensure that initial contact with potential LEAD referrals is consistent, effective, and contextually appropriate. The LEAD Planning Team reached out to law enforcement from LEAD sites where the program has already been rolled-out in order to inform this best practices guide. Officers from other LEAD sites (e.g. Seattle) highlighted the importance of genuine and engaged conversation as a key element of establishing trust, confidence, and respect in the initial contact. This guide will serve as a reference document during key trainings for law enforcement participating in LEAD SF.

Suggested Introduction: to be used as a guide rather than a script.

It includes highlighted language in brackets for citations or custodial arrests.

[IMPORTANT]: Ensure body cameras are on (SFPD and BART) and/or obtain written confirmation (SFSD) of voluntary decision by individual to participate in LEAD.

“So normally you would be [receiving a citation or booked into jail] today on this offense. There may be an alternative. I’ll have to perform a background check to determine your eligibility.

- Have you heard of the LEAD (Law Enforcement Assisted Diversion) program? It offers a one-time arrest diversion, which means that instead of [getting a citation OR going to jail], you would be released from here to speak with a LEAD representative. The representative is not a law enforcement employee, but rather an advocate that has access to various resources for assisting you, such as assistance with obtaining housing, job training, and addiction treatment services when you are ready for it.
- LEAD operates on a ‘harm-reduction’ model, which means that there are no set expectations or benchmarks (for example, regarding drug use) for your continued participation. They accept you where you are at.
- The only requirement is that you meet back up with a LEAD representative within 30 days of today for your intake. If you do that, today’s [citation OR charge] may not be filed or held over your head.”
- Would you like to participate in LEAD? If yes: [I can take you to a service that can help you; would you like to be transported or go on your own within 30 days? OR I will drive you to the initial intake now].

*transport approach differs for those with a misdemeanor vs. felony
