SFDPH IN ACTION

Our mission is to protect and promote the health and well-being of all in San Francisco. The San Francisco Department of Public Health's team of more than 8,000 people works to improve the conditions and behaviors that affect health so that all people can attain it. It is our vision to make San Francisco the healthiest place on earth by:

- providing healthcare for those who are ill
- providing services and education that keep people well
- creating and enforcing healthy policies
- conducting research and monitoring community health

SFDPH works to achieve its mission through two major divisions: the SF Health Network and the Population Health Division.

POPULATION HEALTH DIVISION

The Population Health Division focuses on improving health for everyone in San Francisco. From newborn to the elderly, in every neighborhood, Population Health works to boost healthy behaviors, community safety, healthy buildings and homes, safe restaurants and emergency response throughout San Francisco's communities. We do this by policy, research, action, and partnering with the SF Health Network and Community Based Organizations, providing people with the information and services needed to live a healthy lifestyle.

SF HEALTH NETWORK

San Francisco has a public health care system that works to connect San Franciscans to quality health care, regardless of immigration status or lack of insurance. Through the SF Health Network (SFHN) community of top-rated clinics, hospitals, and programs, SF residents receive treatment, prevention services, and wellness support they need.

KEEPING YOU IN THE LOOP ON CURRENT EVENTS

The Department of Public Health is here to ensure that the public gets up-to-date information on the Hunters Point Shipyard, and we are always improving the way that we share information.

In January 2019, SFDPH will launch a digital hub on their website, sfdph.org. It will be a one-stop shop with up to the minute information about the Shipyard including updates on:

- the Navy's cleanup and restoration progress
- independent monitoring of the project
- upcoming public meetings
- report findings
- future plans for the land
