4. Sustainability: Re-authorize FSTF with changes (more discussion needed)

5. Pre-budget meetings with Supervisors
   • Include above plus FSTF 2020 recommendations briefer (with some adjustments)
Process:

• Update FSTF 2020 recommendations (motion to approve plan to revise/make changes after public comment)

• Meetings with Supervisors (Feb/March)
  • Present FSTF 2020 revised recommendations (include list of innovations/examples if possible)
  • Talking points (and/or slides) to include: Summarize key strategic priorities advanced due to COVID-19 to retain and build upon. Call out flexibility in regulations, new interventions, co-led by the community (continued need to reach-out to community regarding needs and gaps). Emphasize health & racial equity.
  • Gather feedback from Supervisors

• Re-authorization of FSTF
  • Gather input from Supervisors and other key stakeholders
  • Discuss changes in strategic planning subcommittee; bring recommendations to Taskforce
The Food Security Task Force (FSTF) was established by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors and charged with making recommendations to the City to improve food security. The task force requested input from members and community stakeholders on:

1. Immediate threats to food security.
2. Innovations to food security during the response to COVID-19.
3. Policy recommendations to improve food security.

This document summarizes the FSTF recommended response to the unprecedented need for food in San Francisco during this crisis.

Background: Prior to COVID-19, food insecurity in San Francisco was a pressing and widespread issue. At least 1 in 4 San Franciscans experienced food insecurity and its negative impacts, including poor health, elevated stress, exacerbation of mental health conditions, and impairment to child development and academic achievement. Previous reports from the FSTF (2018, 2019) highlight San Francisco’s residents most vulnerable to food insecurity. The COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in a severe and rapid growth in food insecurity across San Francisco.

Update for February 2021

- Same overall content – no major changes
- Update to clarify strategic goals
- Framing: response to COVID plus responsive to ongoing and changing needs
Updates:

- Framing: Huge increases in food insecurity and unprecedented response, yet still gaps (COVID has worsened existing problem)

- Timeframe – update from initial shelter in place to reflect ongoing need and responsiveness to changing needs

Emphasizes health and racial equity

COVID-19 Impact on Food Security and Community Response

Many individuals and families are facing food insecurity due to unprecedented unemployment as well as the closure of organizations that previously offered food programs. The widespread impact of COVID-19 has required immediate solutions to minimize hunger and support residents to safely shelter in place. Many food programs pivoted their models to support their clients’ food and household needs, and innovative models emerged led by public agencies, community organizations, and newly formed spontaneous feeding groups. Food providers have been lifelines to the community, and these efforts have played a key role in supporting FSTF vulnerable populations to shelter in place and minimize the community transmission of COVID-19.

With the current surge in cases of COVID-19, we must be even more vigilant in sustaining support for vulnerable populations to shelter in place, especially those at highest risk of serious illness from COVID-19. These populations include communities experiencing health disparities and structural racism: African Americans, Latinx, immigrants who are undocumented, people with disabilities, and people who are experiencing homelessness. People living in congregate settings and in multigenerational households including many children are also of concern, as well as essential workers who have been heavily impacted by COVID-19. Mayor Breed’s budget includes $45.8 million to support food security as part of the City’s response to COVID-19. This historic investment is critical, and the food security crisis in San Francisco will likely require additional public and private investment.

Immediate Threats: Economic uncertainty and heightened racial inequities exacerbate existing food insecurity. Below is a summary of some of the most immediate threats to food security.

Economic Distress
- Wealth inequality;
- High rates of unemployment;
- Expiration of enhanced federal unemployment benefits;
- Increasing lack of health insurance for the unemployed;
- High cost of living combined with workers earning above the income threshold for federal nutrition benefits.

Community Trauma
- Violence, trauma, and mental health crisis;
- Increased homelessness;
- Suspension of Muni lines leave gaps in access to foods and jobs.

Inadequate Government Support
- Budget cuts at the federal, state, and local level;
- Lack of comprehensive federal COVID-19 relief package;
- Immigrants are often not eligible for federal benefits;
- Changes to the federal COVID-19 Food Assistance Relief Farmer to Family Food Box program and its early expiration.

Add impact of remote school/lack of child care on employment income
Updates:

• Add pro-actively plan for "roll back" of emergency food supports – fill the gaps.

• Highlight Flexibility with examples
• Highlight new interventions – community/neighborhood and grassroot (add separate doc with examples?)
Updates:

- Update Fed/State to reflect current status

- Update to reflect FSTF strategic plan priorities (centrally coordinated food coord, shared measurement, Info & referral)
Next steps (who, by when):

1. Add updates to FSTF 2020 recommendations
   • Text changes
   • Paula work with graphic designer

2. Develop talking points/slides for meetings

3. Set up meetings with Supervisors (assign a lead for each district)
   • Set meetings after Feb 24 through March
