Restaurant Appreciation Month and National Food Day

Mayor and Board of Supervisors Salute Restaurants for Unique Contributions to City

San Francisco, CA—Mayor Edwin M. Lee and each member of the Board of Supervisors presented Certificates of Honor to 11 restaurants as part of Restaurant Appreciation Month in San Francisco during the Board of Supervisor's meeting today. The event this year coincides with the second annual national Food Day on or around October 24 (www.foodday.org.)

Restaurant Appreciation Month in San Francisco was created in 2011 as a way to salute and honor the contributions that the restaurant industry makes to the vitality of the City.

To qualify for recognition, the Department of Public Health solicited restaurant nominations from the Mayor and each member of the Board of Supervisors, asking them to consider restaurants that represent distinctive contributions to the City or their district. Some of the categories the elected officials were asked to take into consideration in submitting nominations were innovative cuisine, environmental conservation and sustainability, use of local and regional food, community work, improved food access in underserved communities, fair labor practices, and adherence to food safety standards. The finalists are:
